Txakoli Cellars

Txakoli is a young, fruity, slightly sparkling wine that is produced in the Basque Country.

This drink's popularity has infused Txakoli cellars with modernity. Enjoying it is a way to pay tribute to the good life, all while drinking in remote nature. These locations offer an increasingly diverse supply, all while maintaining their authenticity. Production is concentrated in the coastal areas of Orío, Zarautz, and Getaria, although Hondarribia has also recovered this tradition.

These cellars produce txakoli with the Getariako Txakolina Designation of Origin.

OUTSTANDING FEATURES:

Strolls amongst the extensive vineyards, learning about how the wine is made first-hand. During harvest season in September, it is possible to collect grapes.

Cider houses

Cider is a fermented apple juice that evokes one of the most iconic Basque culinary traditions. Cider houses are farmhouses surrounded by apple trees, where the fruit is harvested, and the beverage is produced.

Most cider houses are concentrated in the northeast of the province, specifically in Astigarraga, Hernani, Urnieta, and Usurbil.

A typical custom in these venues is to eat while standing, and when Txotxi is shouted, to drink cider directly poured from the "kupela" (barrel).

OUTSTANDING FEATURES:

The cider season is from January through April, although more and more cider houses are opening their doors all year round. A traditional, authentic ambiance to enjoy a piece of local gastronomy in an informal setting.

Donostia / San Sebastián

The city's great beauty, the quality of its services, and the huge range of entertainment options have made it one of the most desired tourist cities in Europe. Donostia has dozens of activities.

Of note are the team building workshops with Basque rural sport, or thematic treasure hunts all around the city. Its three beaches provide countless opportunities, like kayaking, paddle surfing, and sailboat rides to beat stress and relax. And for the most active, there are also surf classes, fishing, and bicycle routes through the mountains, and lookout points surrounding the city.

And we must not forget the most prized treasure: its cuisine. Exclusive local experiences, like pintxos, cider houses, txakoli wineries, etc.
